Madrileno won right back again in the opening event in the face of almost a record play on James R. Keene's Apron. All the handicappers went to Apron. Jimmy Rowe thought the filly would win too. She was beaten, however, and without excuses. She ied around the bend, with Madrileno next and Jack Joyner's Distract close up down to sevens, obert and Banyah after getting the worst of the start and running all around the field. Banyah, after getting away well and running in front to the stretch quit badly. Obert finished strong, as usual, and got the place from Bolando, who closed from absolutely last place. Long Eall was unruly at the post, as usual, and delayed the start. Although Jane Swift appeared to stand out, there was a disposition to steer clear of her. Bolando was the best backed horse in the race, his price going from twenty down to sevens. Obert and Banyah were and Jack Joyner's Distract close up down to sevens. Mr. Burroughs, the psychologist, likens one's perceptive qualities to a trap, delicately and lightly set. But "most of us," he says, "are so rusty that only a bear would suffice to spring the trap-we miss all but the great and startling incidents of the ife about us."

You can easily overcome this ten dency to overlook "opportunities' to work, hire, buy, sell, rent, exchange, &c., by making it a practice to consult The World's "Want Directory." Every morning it presents more chances to economize and make money than are shown in any other newspaper on earth. The World has a greater daily cir

About noon the proprietor and others detected a faint odor of gas in the building. No investigation was made and the odor became stronger. Shortly ter, was instructed to make an in-vestigation. He started in the cellar and worked his way up to the second floor. In the rear hallway the smell of gas was particularly strong. Slavin tried the doors of all the rooms and hey all opened but one.

This door was forced. It was the ans from the West had retired last night. They had nailed it shut from the inside. The only window was tight-i closed, so that while the gas slowly scaped the chamber was practically rught.
